

'TARTUFFE' PRESS REACTIONS
April 2006

“To behold Lutz's holy roller/snake oil salesman is to simultaneously laugh and feel the need for a long, cleansing shower. It's a hilarious and brave performance.” Catey Sullivan Oak Leaves

“Topping the list of first-rate performances is Lanny Lutz who was born to play Tartuffe. His performance alone is worth the price of admission. What's not to love with his greasy hair, round belly and preacher like cadence? He exudes the slimy con man charm with originality and fierce comedic timing while sprinkling the show with a bit of acting magic.” Elizabeth Macik Insider West

“Lanny Lutz seems perfect as the slimy imposter working under the guise of religious piety.” Doug Deuchler Wed Journal

“Lanny Lutz should get an award for the low life scoundrel that he brings to life as Tartuffe. He reminded me of Burt Lancaster in Elmer Gantry, with a healthy portion of W.C. Fields thrown in for fun.”

Ed Vincent Oak Park Journal
